You can build up one kind of a reputation without any trouble whatever. One act, that you ought to have left un-done, will do it for you, and it may take you years to wipe out the reputation it will give you. Good repute cannot be obtained in an hour or a day. You must not only be honest in your intentions, but you must see to it, that your honest in-tentions are not frustrated by carelessness. We pride our-selves on the reputation we have established. It is as much a part of our stock in trade as the Goods we sell. Just not we are offering something on which we can without any fear

JUR GRAND STOCK OF SPRING GOODS We have selected these goods with unusual care and can we have selected these goods with unusual care and can truthfully assert that as regards quality, styles and quantity our stock for this spring is much superior—if that were possible—to those of previous seasons. We have not the space now to enumerate all the beauties of our specialties—suffice it to say, that we have EVERYTHING and if you wil! give us a call you will be very easily convinced. No trouble to show goods. Respectfully,
